

OYB Control: the Discord section

A full tutorial for staff, with pictures.

Everything the OYB bot says and does in our Discord is changed from the panel. No code, no restarts.

Where: log in at panel.oybgaming.com and press DISCORD in the top menu.

The Discord page lists every part in groups:

- What new members see: Start here, Join greeting, Server info & rules, Factions
- What the bot posts by itself: Match alerts, Weekly top 3, Ban messages, Staff alerts
- Posting yourself: Posts
- Staff jobs: Link requests, Feedback
- Setup: Channels & roles, Server names

Each one has a status in the corner:

- Live: Discord shows your version
- Draft not published: someone saved changes but hasn't pushed them out
- Bot's default: never changed, the bot's built-in wording (that's fine)

● Problem: the bot couldn't do it; open the page to see why

Who can use it: owners, plus anyone an owner gives Discord access to under Admins → Edit access (all Discord pages, or just some).

Picking a channel

Pages for something the bot keeps in a channel have a Channel box at the very top: Server info & rules, Factions, Match alerts, Weekly top 3, Staff alerts, Feedback and Link requests.

1. Pick the channel from the list.
2. That's it. It saves the moment you pick it and you'll see "Channel changed".
3. Within a minute the bot takes its message down from the old channel and puts it up in the new one.

Good to know

- The channel box is separate from Publish. Publishing a page never changes its channel, and changing the channel never needs a publish.
- The first option in the list is what the bot does with nothing picked, e.g. "The bot's own #servers channel".
- The bot uses the channel as it is: it won't rename it or change who can see it. So make sure the bot can post there, and that staff channels (staff alerts, feedback inbox, link requests) really are staff only.
- Start here, Join greeting, Ban messages and Posts pick their channel inside the page instead.

HOW MEMBERS SEND IT

Add a Give feedback button to a post, like one in your #feedback channel: Posts → New post, then a button that does Give feedback. Pressing it opens a short form: what it's about (picked from your topics, or typed if you haven't set any), and their feedback. It lands in the channel picked above with their name, and they can send one every 5 minutes.

TOPICS THEY PICK FROM (ONE PER LINE, UP TO 25, E.G. SERVERS, ADMINS, DISCORD, BUG, SUGGESTION; LEAVE EMPTY TO LET THEM TYPE THEIR OWN)

- Servers & settings
- Rules
- Events
- Discord
- Suggestion

☒ Take feedback (untick to close the form for now)

WHAT THEY'RE TOLD

AFTER THEY SEND IT (ONLY THEY SEE THIS)

Thanks! Staff will read it. 📩 If this was a problem that needs sorting, open a ticket instead.

DM WHEN STAFF PRESS DONE (BLANK SENDS NOTHING; {TOPIC} BECOMES WHAT IT WAS ABOUT)

Thanks for your feedback about {topic}. Staff have read it and dealt with it. Keep it coming. 📩

FOR STAFF

Each one has two buttons: Reply by DM sends them a message from the bot (it's noted on the feedback too), and Done turns it green and sends the DM above.

PUBLISH SAVE DRAFT

Every page works the same way:

- Save draft: keeps your changes without touching Discord. Other owners see the draft too, so you can leave it for someone to check.
- Publish: sends it to the bot. Discord updates within a minute.
- Discard draft: throws your changes away and goes back to what's live.

The box near the top always tells you where you are:

- Not published: Discord still shows the bot's default.
- Live: when it was published and by who, and whether the bot has picked it up yet.
- Draft: there are unsaved changes nobody has published.

If something's wrong (a missing channel, a role the bot can't give out), Publish stops and lists what to fix, and your work is kept as a draft so nothing is lost.

Most pages have a Preview on the right. It's roughly how it'll look in Discord, and it updates as you type.

👋 Start here message

The screenshot shows the 'O.Y.B. CONTROL' interface for editing the 'START HERE MESSAGE'. The top navigation bar includes links for DISCORD, WEBSITE, ADMINS, and GUIDE. The main content area is divided into several sections:

- WHERE AND HOW IT LOOKS: Includes a 'CHANNEL' dropdown (set to 'Start here channel from the bot's settings (#👋 | welcome)'), a 'TITLE' field (set to 'Start here'), and a 'STRIPE COLOUR' field (set to '#A9BCBC').
- TEXT: A section for editing the message content, split into three sections (1, 2, 3) with optional headings. Section 1 includes instructions on linking a Reformer account and playing a round. Section 2 includes instructions on picking a side (US, USSR, FIA) and a warning about not locking factions in-game. Section 3 includes instructions on progress tracking.
- Buttons: A section for adding buttons to the message, with up to 5 buttons on each of 5 lines. The buttons are: '1. LINK REFORMER ACCOUNT', 'MY PROGRESS', 'US Pick a faction (US / USSR / FIA)', 'USSR Pick a faction (US / USSR / FIA)', 'FIA Pick a faction (US / USSR / FIA)', and 'NO FACTION No faction'.
- Preview: A preview of the message as it will appear in Discord, showing the channel name, title, and the formatted text with buttons.

Discord → Start here message is the first thing new members see: the rules, the button to link their game account, and the faction picker.

Where and how it looks

- Channel: where it's posted (our 👋 | welcome).
- Title and Stripe colour: the coloured bar down the side.

Text

It's split into sections, each with an optional heading.

- bold, italic and new lines work just like in Discord.
- ↑ ↓ move a section, × removes it, + Add section adds one.

Watch the Preview on the right as you type. When you're happy, Publish. The bot edits the existing message; it doesn't post a new one.

Start again from the original at the bottom puts it back to the bot's built-in version if you ever want to start over.

What it does — pick one:

- Link Reforger account: opens the box to link their game account
- My progress: shows them what they've done and what's left
- Pick a faction / No faction: the US, USSR and FIA roles (Start here only)
- Give or take a role: press to get it, press again to remove it (e.g. Event pings)
- Pick one role from a group: buttons with the same group name work together; picking one removes the others. Tick Locked so they can't change it after.
- Open a web link: opens a website
- Give feedback: opens the feedback form (see Feedback)

Then set the Label, an Emoji, which Line it sits on, and the Colour.

For role buttons, pick a role from the list or choose + Make a new role... and type a name; the bot creates it when you publish. Tick Only for players who've linked to keep it for linked players.

⚠️ A button can never hand out a role with permissions (admin, kick, manage anything). Those are greyed out. The bot's own role also has to sit above any role it gives out; the page tells you if it doesn't.

● Match alerts

The screenshot shows the 'DISCORD' tab in the O.Y.B. CONTROL interface. The main heading is 'MATCH ALERTS' with a subtitle: '"Match started" alerts, and who gets pinged for which server.' Below this is a 'CHANNEL' section with a dropdown menu showing '# | announcements' and a 'CHANGE CHANNEL' button. A note states: 'In # | announcements now. Picking one saves it straight away, apart from Publish below, and the bot moves there within a minute.' A 'NOT PUBLISHED' status bar indicates: 'Match alerts use the bot's built-in wording, on every server, until you publish.' The 'WHICH SERVERS POST AN ALERT' section explains that when a match starts, the bot posts in the selected channel and players choose servers to ping with bell icons. It lists four options: 'Classic (server-1)', '3x Everon (server-2)', 'Classic #2 (server-3)', and 'Ping the players who asked for that server's alerts (untick to post quietly)'. The 'WORDING' section has a 'TITLE' field with '{server} — match started' and a 'MESSAGE' field with 'A new match is live. Join the server!'. A note explains that '{server}' is replaced by the server's name. At the bottom are 'PUBLISH' and 'SAVE DRAFT' buttons. A 'PREVIEW' window on the right shows the final alert: 'Classic — match started', 'A new match is live. Join the server!', 'Started 2 minutes ago.', 'Expires in 28 minutes (30 minutes after match start).', and 'O.Y.B. • Match notifications'.

When a new match starts on a server, the bot posts a "match started" alert. Discord → Match alerts controls it.

- Channel (top): where alerts go (our 📣 | announcements).
- Which servers post an alert: untick a server to stop its alerts.
- Ping the players who asked for that server's alerts: players choose which servers ping them with the 🔔 buttons. Untick to post quietly with no ping.

The 'LINKED ACCOUNTS (4)' section has a note: 'Unlinking takes their rank roles away. Their playtime and XP stay with the game account, so they can link again later and keep it.' Below is a table:

MEMBER	IN GAME	GAME ACCOUNT	LINKED	HOW
sgthavoc 6100000000000000010	Sgt Havoc	5f1c2a90...	1d ago	By itself	UNLINK
pteroock 6100000000000000011	Pte Rook	a0b1c2d3...	2d ago	In Discord	UNLINK
rook_ps5 6100000000000000012	Rook_PS5	b1c2d3e4...	3d ago	Here, by gazlagom	UNLINK
cplfennel 6100000000000000013	Cpl Fennel	0e9d8c7b...	4d ago	By itself	UNLINK

Members link their Discord to their in-game account from the Start here message. Discord → Link requests is the same queue as the  | oyb-link-requests channel. Deciding in either place does the same thing.

Waiting for review

- Approve: links them and gives them the member role. Make sure it's really them first; a matching name alone isn't proof.
- Reject: turns it down and tells them.
- If it says No game account matched that name, start typing their in-game name, pick them from the list and press Link.

Linked accounts

Everyone already linked. Unlink takes their rank roles away. Their playtime and XP stay with the game account, so they keep it if they link again.

The bot carries out each decision within a minute.

CHANNELS & ROLES

Channels for the boards and logs with no page of their own, and the member roles. Every other page picks its own channel at the top.

LIVE Published 1m ago by gazlagom. Waiting for the bot to pick it up (it checks every 30 seconds).

Channels change within a minute of publishing. Role changes take effect the next time the bot restarts. Leave a box on "keep" to use what's in the bot's .env.

ROLES

Member role given when someone accepts the rules; point channel permissions at this. Now: OYB Member	Keep as it is
Unverified label on people who haven't linked yet. Now: Unverified	Keep as it is

PUBLISH SAVE DRAFT

Discord → Channels & roles is for the few things with no page of their own:

Channels

- Live match board: the self-updating board while a match runs
- Match results: each finished match's results
- Weekly leaderboard: the pinned weekly board
- Rank promotions: rank-up posts

Pick a channel, or leave Keep as it is, then Publish. Channels change within a minute.

Roles

- Member role: given when someone accepts the rules. Point channel permissions at this role.
- Unverified label: on people who haven't linked yet.

Role changes need the bot restarting.

Picked on their own page at the top shows which channel every other page is using, with a link to change it. Handy for checking everything is where it should be.

? Quick fixes

"I published but nothing changed in Discord"

Wait a minute. The bot checks every 30 seconds. Check the page's status box: if it says Problem, it lists why.

"It's posting in the wrong channel"

Check the Channel box at the top of that page. Remember it saves by itself and is separate from Publish.

"A button says the role can't be given out"

The role has permissions, or it sits above the bot's role. In Discord → Server Settings → Roles, drag the bot's role above it.

"Staff alerts / feedback aren't showing up"

A channel must be picked at the top of that page, and the bot must be able to see and post in it.

"I made a mess"

Discard draft goes back to what's live. On Start here, Start again from the original goes back to the bot's built-in version.
